OWE DUTY TO ADOLESCENCE

COMMUNITY MUST PROVIDE OUTLET, PARENTS ARE TOLD.

RECREATION A NEED

Describing "Symptoms," Speaker Urges More Sympathetic Understanding For Youth.

Provision of an abundance of wholesome recreation and organized sports is the duty of a community in helping to deal with the problems of adolescence, Maryville parents and teachers were told yesterday afternoon by Dr. Florence Brown Sherbon, head of the Kansas Bureau of Child Research and a member of the faculty of the University of Kansas.

Dr. Sherbon spoke at the Maryville High School at a meeting sponsored by the Maryville P. T. A. and was well attended.

"The intoxicating stimulation of new secretions, with the powerful urges they create, must have outlet," Dr. Sherbon warned her hearers. "If these avenues of outlet are not provided, they will find their own outlet, and it may be a devastating one."

Dr. Sherbon's talk on "Phases of Adolescence" followed a discussion by her of "Pre-School Education," of which a report is given on the Democrat-Forum's school page.

Responsible for Amusements.

Continuing her exposition of the community part in dealing with adolescence, which she characterized as a "new birth," the speaker declared:

"The community is also responsible for the strict supervision of commercial amusements. Especially should the socially minded parents go with their children to movies and enter into the interests of their children—as pals, not as police.

"The socially minded of every community are definitely responsible for their news stands. A committee should personally read every piece of literature displayed for sale and know how much comes in by avenues other than the United States mails. This same committee should make a study of providing clean, interesting literature."

A community committee should visit public lavatories and toilets and know what type of advertising is circulated, she added.

Arbitrary Authority Passe.

Discussing individual responsibility, Dr. Sherbon declared that parental control must be replaced by teaching individual control.

"Implicit obedience to authority, because it is authority, is not only disappearing from the home, it is fading out of all human experience," she explained. "From the toddler to the voter and the statesman, we demand to know the 'why'.

"If we may believe what the psychologists and biologists and the new educators now tell us, our grave mistake has been in failure to satisfy and encourage the inquiring attitude of the child's unfolding mind. It has been so much easier to say, 'You don't need to know why—do as I tell you,' and 'Little boys and girls always mind their parents and don't ask why.' "

The "Best Seller" Type.

The adolescent who is furnishing "best seller" material at the present time, Dr. Sherbon said, is the adolescent in whom the physical change takes place explosively.

"He 'shot up inches in a night,' the writer will say. He has three outstanding characteristics—hunger, obstinacy and happiness."

"His grades go bad, he won't mind and he wants to eat all the time. Neither he nor the family understand why he is so. Too often the school and the family blame the helpless victim for what is hard enough to bear at the best. He is berated and ridiculed because he cannot at once co-ordinate and control the vast amount of new structure with which he is incumbered.

"The poor, perplexed parents feel that gluttony, laziness and disobedience are traits which it is their duty to combat. And they do combat them. They remonstrate, humiliate and berate the poor sufferer or, worst of all, sentimentalize and plead with him or pray audibly over him.

Understanding Lacking.

"Conflict is established. The poor, lonely wretch does not understand himself, he knows his family do not understand him, he cannot help being hungry, he cannot help being physically and

196 ENTRIES IN CONTESTS

TWELVE HIGH SCHOOLS SEND BLANKS EARLY.

MANY MORE TO COME

Lists Do Not Close Until Monday Night Mails.—Work On Track Starts Next Week.

At 9 a. m. today twelve high schools had entered 196 students for the Northwest Missouri district contests to be held at the State Teachers College here April 28, 29 and 30, according to W. L. Mapel, in charge of the contests.

Indications were that an entry list as fully as large as previous years would be in by next week. Mr. Mapel said entries do not have to be in the mails before Monday night.

Entry lists from three schools, Ridgeway, Savannah and Gallatin, were incomplete, and had to be sent back, and these schools were not included in the twelve mentioned. The entry list from these schools probably will total fifty, it was thought.

The Maryville and Bethany schools this morning had not entered their students for the contests. Both schools always send large numbers. No St. Joseph entries have been received.

The committee on housing will begin assigning rooms Monday.

Work on the track to get it in shape for the track and field meet in connection with the contests will be begun next week, when Coach H. Frank Lawrence will have a large crew of men at work. It was impossible to do any work on the track this week on account of the rains.

Howell England of Fortesque and Lon Wilson of Ridgeway, former College students, will bring formidable track teams to the meet.

Mr. Mapel said that fully 75 per cent of the entries received to date were not properly filled out. This necessitated the use of two additional men in the office to check the lists and return the entries for correction.

The schools which had sent in correct and revised entry lists early this morning, with the number of entries, were:

Darlington, 1; Stewartsville, 22; Hamilton, 5; Grayson, 6; Grant City, 25; Edgerton, 24; Plattsburg, 26; Fillmore, 9; Daleview, 13; Gower, 14; Tarkio, 29; Fortesque, 20.

Drillers to Return to Work at Oil Well

Rig Isolated by Muddy Roads Until Today.—Hole Will Be Drained of Water Tomorrow.

On account of the rains and muddy roads this week the drillers who have the contract for drilling the Quitman Gas and Oil Company well, nine and one-half miles northwest of Maryville, have been unable to reach the outfit, George Rose, contractor, said this noon.

He said they would start for the well this afternoon, and would drain it out tomorrow, expecting to get started drilling tomorrow late in the afternoon.

They have drilled to a depth of 745 feet.

Miss Lula Massie left this morning for Nebraska City, Neb., to spend a few days with her sister, Miss Mildred Massie, an instructor in the Nebraska City High School. Miss Massie has been re-elected at an increase in salary.

Mr. and Mrs. James Pool of Barnard visited in Maryville today.

TWO DISPUTES TO BE DECIDED

COMMISSIONERS ARE NAMED IN SCHOOL CONTROVERSIES.

HEARING HERE MONDAY

Skidmore-Graham and Harmon-White Hall Boundary Questions to Be Taken Up.

Commissioners appointed by Leslie G. Somerville, county superintendent of schools, will meet here Monday in the county court room and decide two disputes among four school districts, regarding the voting of land from one district to another. The decisions of these commissioners will be final.

The Skidmore-Graham case will be submitted to Mr. Somerville at 1:30 in the afternoon. The Harmon-White Hall case will be disposed of at 10 o'clock in the morning, Mr. Somerville announced today.

A dispute of long standing, which has caused dissension among the school patrons, is involved in the proposition to transfer 1,680 acres of land from the Skidmore Consolidated District No. 132 to the Graham Consolidated District No. 162. Skidmore at the last election voted in favor of transferring the land to Graham and Graham voted against it.

Three hundred and twenty acres are located in section thirteen, three-quarters of a mile south and two miles west of Skidmore. Thirteen hundred and sixty acres are situated in sections 22, 23, 24, 26 and 27. All the land is south of Skidmore from two to four miles and from a half to two miles east of that town. The sections all are located in township 63, range, 37.

The other case which the commissioners will decide regards the proposed transfer of eighty acres of land from White Hall district No. 175 to Harmon district No. 176, which is immediately south of Barnard. Harmon has voted in favor of the transfer.

The names of the commissioners will not be announced until after the hearings Monday.

Henry Anderson Dies Suddenly

Death Came to Pioneer Resident Who Had Lived in Nodaway County 50 Years, This Morning.

Henry (W. H.) Anderson, widely known throughout Nodaway County, where he has lived since 1877, died suddenly about 4:30 o'clock this morning at his home, eleven miles southwest of Maryville. Mr. Anderson had been failing in health for two years, and had suffered several heart attacks during the winter. He seemed to be in his usual health yesterday, however.

Arrangements for the funeral will not be completed until word is received from a son, Dr. Harry J. Anderson of Corvallis, Ore.

Mr. Anderson was born at Blandinsville, Ill., on Oct. 15, 1854, and was the son of John Anderson, a native of Tennessee, and Rachel Hainline, a native of Kentucky. He was married to Nannie Findley at Blandinsville, Ill., on March 11, 1877. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson celebrated their golden wedding anniversary the eleventh of last month.

In July after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson came to Missouri, making the trip in a wagon. They located on the farm where Mr. Anderson's death occurred this morning.

Surviving Mr. Anderson are his widow, one son, Dr. Harry J. Anderson of Corvallis, Ore., and two daughters, Mrs. Clarence Lyle of Barnard and Mrs. Will B. Gex of Graham. Mr. Anderson also leaves a sister, Mrs. Flora Lowry and one brother, James Anderson, both of Blandinsville, Ill. The latter will arrive tomorrow morning to attend the funeral.

Baby, 18 Months Old, Dies This Morning

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Horn, Elmo, Succumbs To Whooping Cough and Pneumonia.

Marjorie Lucille Horn, 18 months old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Horn, west of Elmo, died at 2 o'clock this morning of whooping cough and pneumonia. Besides the parents, a brother, Kenneth, 5 years old, survives. No funeral arrangements have been made.

Miss Anne Stowell, house director of Residence Hall, returned last night from a short visit in Kansas City.

WELL KNOWN H. S. TEACHER TO THE STAGE

Miss Laura Hawkins to Embark in New Profession, Says Well Founded Rumor.

A rumor gained widespread circulation today that Miss Laura B. Hawkins, for twenty years a teacher in the Maryville High School, is about to go on the stage. The announcement did not come from Miss Hawkins but from persons closely associated with her, who declared that she undoubtedly possessed an inherent, but until recently unsuspected dramatic talent.

Miss Hawkins could not be reached today for a statement. Those who gave out the information could not say whether she may later abandon her teaching career for the stage or whether she will combine the two by taking Chautauqua or other engagements during the summer.

Miss Hawkins' study of English, the subject she now teaches, together with her other classroom experiences and extra-curricular activities, is expected to prove of value to her before the footlights.

Several thousand friends and former students will look forward to her first appearance, which her friends were assured would be made in Maryville.

STATE TAXES TO BE HIGHER

1-CENT INCREASE MADE FOR SOLDIER BONUS BONDS.

GENERAL LEVY 5 CENTS

County Court To Meet May 2 To Fix County Levy.—April 25 As Board Of Appeals.

The state tax levy for 1927 will be 13 cents on the $100 valuation, according to information received today by Fred Wright, county clerk, from L. D. Thompson, state auditor. This is an increase of 1 cent over last year.

The boost is due to an increase of 1 cent made in order to raise the amount of money needed to pay the principal and interest on State of Missouri World War Soldiers Bonus Bonds, maturing in 1928, according to Mr. Thompson. This makes the levy 4 cents for the soldier bonus bonds on each assessed $100 valuation in this county.

The state revenue will be divided as follows:

5 cents on the $100 valuation for state revenue.

4 cents on the $100 valuation for state revenue for soldiers' bonus.

4 cents on the $100 valuation for blind pensions.

1 cent on the $100 valuation for interest tax.

The county court will meet May 2 to fix the county levy. Last year the court fixed the county levy at 45 cents, 10 cents on the assessed $100 valuation being for road funds.

The court will meet a week from Monday, April 25, as a board of appeals to hear all complaints of property owners whose valuations were raised by the board of equalization.

Gordon Swinford and Mr. and Mrs. Alva Pride, Pickering; George Baugher, Skidmore; and Dorse Conn of Ravenwood were Maryville visitors today.

U.S. WARSHIPS ARE FIRED ON!

LARGE GUNS SILENCE CHINESE SNIPERS.

NOTE NOT ACCEPTABLE

Ministers of Five Powers, Meeting in Peking, Hold Nationalist Reply "Veiled Threat."

Shanghai, April 16.—United States warships in the Yangtze river were frequently under Chinese fire today, but in all instances were able to silence the snipers with large guns.

One man was wounded in the leg aboard the destroyer Preble.

The U. S. S. Cincinnati, Ford, and Preble were fired on. Most of the Chinese shooting apparently was done by North China troops, who returned to the north bank of the Yangtze after having been driven beyond it by the nationalist advance last month.

Situation to Be Studied.

Washington, April 16.—A somewhat extensive period of study will precede any new step by the United States government affecting China, state department officials indicated today.

Advices are eagerly awaited here concerning the reported conference of United States Minister MacMurray with other diplomats at Peking on Nationalist replies to the Nanking affair notes.

Reply Insufficient

Paris, April 16.—Ministers of five powers, including the United States, met in Peking today and agreed that the Nationalist reply to the powers' protest against last month's Nanking disorders was insufficient and constituted a "veiled threat," the foreign office announced today.

The ministers, representing Great Britain, France, Japan, Italy and the United States, reported their opinions to their governments, the announcement said, and recommended that the powers send another note demanding satisfaction from the nationalists.

Conferences between representatives of the powers, the announcement said, will start immediately to determine the advisability of sending an ultimatum and what penalties should be exacted in the event an ultimatum were sent.

LEVEES OF MISSISSIPPI BREAK, LOOSING TORRENT

THOUSANDS OF ACRES COVERED BY FLOOD WATERS.

TWO REPORTED DEAD

Half of Arkansas Inundated by Swollen Rivers.—Water Four Feet Deep in Judsonia.

By UNITED PRESS

Battered by the highest flood waters since 1921, the Mississippi river levee gave way today in several places.

Collapse of the only barrier between security and destruction faced river towns from St. Louis to New Orleans.

Even where the giant dikes held, farms and cities were suffering from flood water, continuous rain and a sea of mud.

Breaks occurred at Mounds, Ill., Judsonia, Ark., and Dorena, Ark. Warnings of danger saved lives and some property in these instances.

Land 10 Feet Under Water.

Water 10 to 15 feet deep flooded approximately 100,000 acres in the vicinity of the Dorena break. Hickman, Ky., across the river from Dorena is threatened with a similar fate. Relief work is under way.

The town of Mounds, with more than 2,500 inhabitants, is completely inundated, according to dispatches from Marion, Ill.

Snapping like a match stick, the levee at Judsonia, Ark., went out this morning, despite the labor of hundreds of men, augmented by women.

The water is four feet deep in Judsonia streets and hundreds of the inhabitants from surrounding lowlands are fleeing before the torrents.

National Guard Tents Used.

With 2,000,000 acres under water and six counties asking for more than 1,000 tents, the Arkansas National Guard is running out of tents. A plea has been sent by Governor Martineau to the adjutant-general at Washington, soliciting more tents.

More than $250,000 damage occurred at Branson, Mo., and Hollister, Mo., when flood waters of the White river left their banks and swept down into the fields.

Two farmers were reported to have drowned in the flood waters. A search was on for the body of Roy Johnson, 32, who fell into Village creek, near Newport, Ark., when the mule he was riding stepped off an inundated bridge. Edward Ing, 28, Vinicord, Tenn., was reported to have drowned in the back waters of the Mississippi river near Dyersburg, Tenn.

Army Aid Ordered.

Washington, April 16.—Army aid for flood sufferers in Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee and Missouri was ordered by the War Department today, following emergency appeals for relief from those states.

Upon request of Red Cross headquarters here, the commander of the Fourth Corps area has been directed to furnish 500 additional tents at Natchez, Miss., and to expedite action for necessary relief.

Supplies are made available from the New Orleans depot.

Naval Reserve Ordered Out.

St. Louis, April 16.—All naval reservists in the St. Louis district have been ordered to stand by for emergency duty in the flood districts. Boats of the reservists are being provisioned and placed in readiness for use.

Auto Traffic in Single File.

St. Louis, April 16.—Automobile traffic on practically every highway out of St. Louis was being routed in single file in order to minimize the hazard of driving with the road bed submerged. Virtually all dirt roads are impassible.

New Orleans Builds Revetment.

New Orleans, April 1 .—Along the Esplanade avenue, in the heart of New Orleans, a revetment has been thrown up to meet any emergency. Water was reported within a few inches of the top of the levee at that point but engineers expressed no fears for the safety of the city.

Fish Are Drowned.

Monmouth Springs, N. Y., April 16.—More than 150,000 small fish were drowned in the government hatcheries here by muddy waters pouring over

Man Crazed by Disaster Shoots Father, Brothers

Newport, Ark., April 16.—Will Parker, crazed over losses and worry from the flood that gripped Jackson county was barricaded in his home about 25 miles from here today, after slaying his father and shooting two brothers.

Sheriff Nance cannot get to the scene because of flood conditions but asked Bradford officers to organize a posse and go to the cabin in skiffs.

Tear gas is being rushed to Bradford from Little Rock.

PLANE SEEKS BOY AND GIRL

MORON SUSPECTED OF KIDNAPING AND MURDER.

GONE SINCE SUNDAY

Posses Have Searched Half Dozen Arkansas Counties For Missing Children.

Little Rock, Ark., April 16.—An airplane of the 154th observation squadron of the Arkansas national guard today joined in the search for Lonnie C. White, 13, and Floella McDonald, 11, who disappeared mysteriously early this week.

Since Monday afternoon when the White boy was last seen, posses of citizens, boy scouts and police have searched half a dozen counties in this part of the state.

The McDonald girl was last seen Tuesday afternoon when she left the library for her home.

It is believed that a moron employed as a servant in a Little Rock home kidnapped and possibly murdered the children.

The airplane will fly over Western Arkansas and eastern Oklahoma and drop circulars describing the children and offering a reward for their safe return.

Jury Cannot Agree in Burkhart Case

Next Trial of "Reign of Terror" Suspect Not to Be Held Before September.

Pawhuska, Okla., April 16.—Unable to agree but standing nine to three for conviction, the jury in the case of Byron Burkhart, accused murderer of Ann Brown, wealthy Osage Indian woman, killed in the Osage "reign of terror," was discharged here this afternoon.

The case will not be heard again until some time next September, court attaches said.

Will Drill for Oil Around Myrtle Tree

Ernest Wray Says Landowners Pledge Money for Tests to Be Made East of Maryville.

Regardless of the outcome of the second oil test now being made by the Quitman Oil and Gas Co., one or more wells will be drilled east of Maryville, on the reported oil formation running from the Myrtle Tree neighborhood east to the state road, it was declared today by Everett Wray, originator of the movement.

Mr. Wray said a number of landowners already had pledged amounts from $100 up, and that the test probably would be made with the same drilling outfit now at work near Quitman, since the hole could be sunk cheaper if it is not necessary to pay new freight charges.

mentally tired, and he resents their goading.

"He grows a protective shell of sullen reticence and covers up his raw sensitiveness with bragadoic. For every blow to his self-respect he hands one back; he would be a craven and a coward if he didn't. Soon both he and his elders are both nursing their wrongs, and the breach widens.

"There are a world of things he or she wants to know, must know. A wall of disapproval makes a confidential approach to those who could and should help him, impossible. He gets information about life from the easiest sources, and his attitudes and ideals are too often smirched and distorted in the process."

Ten Points Developed.

Dr. Sherbon made ten points in summarizing the factors necessary to understanding and guidance of adolescence:

1. The physiological adjustments during the adolescent period may be abrupt, causing very rapid growth and very radical changes in organic activity, especially in the establishment of new and powerful internal secretations.

2. The whole complex of mind and emotion undergoes equally rapid growth and equally radical change. The physiological secretions affect the mind and emotions, and the mind and emotions affect the body. The adolescent himself cannot help having these changes and should not be blamed for them.

3. The mind rests during rapid bodily growth. It is quite useless to try to force it to continue its usual activity.

4. The adolescent needs more food than he will need at 30, and he needs sleep. He cannot help feeling sluggish and probably should be indulged in a short period of laziness while rapid bodily adjustments are going on.

5. This should be followed by a bodily and mental awakening—a zest for sports and a reaching out for the whole world of achievement.

Grows Away From Parents.

6. This is the time when nature intends for him to come loose from parental control. By this time, he should be able to make sound ethical judgments and should have acquired independence and responsibility, and parents must be willing to let him acquire wisdom through experience.

7. He must have at this time the satisfaction and encouragement of accomplishment, all by himself, of some worthwhile thing. He must have responsibilities placed upon him and he must be permitted to make mistakes and learn from these as well as from achievement.

8. He should be treated with the respect accorded to an adult and not ridiculed, cajoled or brow beaten.

9. Imagination and emotion are active. "It has been said," the speaker pointed out, "that the individual may achieve anything in later life of which he dreams in adolescence, but that he can never exceed these dreams. This is the period of religious awakening; of the secret writing of poetry; of the coming of the child into social consciousness.

"The wise adult will be blind to the temporary distortions of adjustment which must be endured and which no one can help, but must be very ready to encourage high idealism and worthy dreams."

Must Be Prepared

10. The child must be prepared for this "new birth," not by being told that great responsibilities or terrible dangers await him, but by being helped to live his own life fully, with complete satisfaction of all natural curiosity at every age level.

"If he is told what he wants to know and what and only what he can understand and is helped to meet his daily responsibilities and make satisfactory, independent decisions at his 3, 5, 8 and 10-year levels, he will meet unflinchingly the crisis of 15 and 20 years, Dr. Sherbon declared.

"We need more understanding of childhood," she pleaded, "more companionship, more training for independence at every age level.

"These, and not parental control, are the need of the hour."

We quite often have to record the demise of men who stand high in community who are esteemed by all who know them and beloved by everyone in the circle of their acquaintance. Such was the case with the subject of this obituary notice. No man in the city of Maryville stood higher in the estimation of all classes of our people than Edward S. Stephenson, who died April 5. His father was Jesse Stephenson who was known to many of the first settlers of this county.

The board of trustees of the incorporated town of Maryville met on the evening of April 6, 1877, present Henry Graves, chairman, L. A. Barteau and S. R. Beech.

The Promise
Easter Day has once more rolled round to remind us that there is a Resurrection and a Life Everlasting. The Day is a symbol, it would seem, that man's soul never dies.
It is good that such a day should be sent once a year to remind us of God's promise that we shall live again. It is fitting that we should contemplate reverently the meaning of this Day of the Risen Christ.

It happened that during the filming of "So This Is Paris," three musical comedies were playing in Los Angeles—"Patsy," "Rose Marie," and "Will Morrissey's Revue." One hundred of these stage beauties, as well as fifty men from the shows, worked in the picture all day, quitting in time for the evening performance. Each was an expert Charleston dancer, picked by Peggy Prevost of "The Zigfield Follies."

The other two hundred girls in "So This Is Paris" were composed of the winners of a number of Charleston contests in Hollywood.

Two little boys in blue. That's how Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton appear in their first Paramount co-starring comedy, "We're in the Navy Now." You see, the erstwhile doughboy pair of "Behind the Front" are in the Navy now!

And their naval career is just one long laugh. Neither of them had any intention of enlisting until they wandered into a training camp. Then on trying to get out, a burly guard stopped them with a dirty laugh and a command to "fall in." Before they had time to turn round, the boys found themselves aboard an army transport—bound for France!

Ten thousand persons, one of the largest "mob" scenes ever used for a cinema comedy, were gathered for the filming of a sequence in Bebe Daniels' current Paramount starring vehicle, "Stranded in Paris."

7 ROOM FARM HOUSE BURNS

H. S. SCHOONOVER HOME NEAR BARNARD DESTROYED.

OIL IS PUT ON FIRE

Can Explodes and Flames Spread—Mr. Schoonover Burned—$1,600 Insurance Carried.

The two-story farm home of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Schoonover, northwest of Barnard, near the Pleasant Grove church, was destroyed by fire at 6 o'clock last night when Mr. Schoonover, who was home alone, started a fire in the stove with coal oil.

The stove in which the fire was started was in the dining room. After the fire had failed to burn, Mr. Schoonover poured the coal oil into the stove. He left the room for a moment immediately after putting the oil on the fire. When he returned the coal oil can, which he had set by the stove had exploded and the room was ablaze.

Schoonover received minor burns in an attempt to put out the flames. He had the fire under control at one time, he thought, but it broke out afresh in the dining room ceiling.

The house was insured for $1,200 and the household goods were insured to the amount of $400, making the entire amount of insurance $1,600. The only article saved from the fire was the sewing machine.

Neighbors gathered at once, but the house burned very rapidly. No other buildings were damaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Schoonover and three children are staying at the home of Frank Blauvelt.

Mr. and Mrs. Schoonover plan to rebuild, it was stated by neighbors.

The house contained seven rooms.

This and That

LET 'ER RAIN!

I've heard about the gentle rain
A beating on the window pane
And think the man was made in rain
Who smiles and says "Just let'er rain."

Now I've been talking here of late
To "old timers" grizzled white;
They say this rain is not so bad
That everything turns out just right.

They say in Eighteen Ninety-Two
Now I remember, so do you,
It would rain all day and rain all night
Then rain again with all its might.

It rained all spring till away in June
And then we had a change of moon.
The sky got clear and the sun shone bright
And the farmer worked with all his might.

We planted our corn, the stalks grew tall
We had a bumper crop that fall;
We paid our bills, we paid our rent
And still didn't have our money spent.

Now remember these things come and go
We are subject to good and ill, you know;
But keep on a going is my advice to you
For you can always depend on "Old Mizzo."

Among the Schools of Nodaway County

NEW CONTESTS FOR STUDENTS

THREE PRIZES OF $250 EACH GIVEN BY RAILROADS.

FOR 250-WORD-ESSAY

"Cross Crossings Cautiously" Is Subject Chosen; for Grammar, High School and College Students.

Concerned over the increase that took place in 1926 compared with 1925 in the number of highway grade crossing accidents and believing that more care should be exercised by all those crossing railroad tracks, the American Railway Association today announced plans for a nation-wide essay contest among school and college students with three cash prizes of $250 each, to be awarded the authors of essays containing an outstanding, readily available suggestion for preventing such accidents.

The announcement comes too late for most of the rural schools of Nodaway county, but Leslie G. Somerville, county superintendent, endorses the contest for the grade and high schools and those rural schools whose terms have not ended.

One prize of $250 will be awarded by the American Railway Association for the best essay by a grammar student, a similar prize for the best essay by a high school student and a like amount for the best essay by a college student.

Under the rules prescribed by the American Railway Association, the subject of the essay is to be "Cross Crossings Cautiously," and each essay is to be limited to 250 words.

The essays must be terse, logical and constructive and must stress the need for greater care in approaching and passing over railroad crossings.

The essays are to be sent to J. C. Caviston, Secretary of the Safety Section of the American Railway Association, at 30 Vessy Street, New York City, by not later than June 1 Three persons of national reputation to be selected later will act as judges.

Under the plan, which is approved by Mr. Somerville, class teachers in both grammar and high schools will select the best essays from their classes and transmit them to their principal, who will then select the best one from that school and send it to the county superintendent. Mr. Somerville will appoint a committee to select the best essay by a grammar student and the best one by a high school student.

The county superintendent then will transmit the best essays to the American Railway Association.

The State Teachers College may follow the same procedure, except that it will select one essay through a proper officer and transmit it direct to the association.

In 1926 there were 5,921 highway grade crossing accidents in which 2,492 persons were killed and 6,991 injured. In 1925 there were 5,479 accidents in which 2,206 persons were killed and 6,555 injured. Owing to the increase that is constantly taking place in the number of automobiles in use, the hazard from such accidents is annually becoming greater. Only through the co-operation of the public and the railroads can a reduction in such accidents be brought about, in view of the fact the complete elimination of highway grade crossings is impossible, not only because of the time that would be involved, but also because of the prohibitive cost which ultimately falls on the public.

URGES A FULL TIME PARENT

BRIDGE NOR POVERTY SHOULD INTERFERE, SAYS SPEAKER.

WHOLE CHILD TAUGHT

Body, as Well as Mind, Goes to School Now, Research Worker Tells Parent-Teachers.

A new bill of rights—this time for the child—was set forth yesterday afternoon before a meeting of the Maryville Parent-Teacher Association by Dr. Florence Brown Sherbon of Lawrence, Kan., head of the Kansas Bureau of Child Research and member of the faculty of the University of Kansas.

"Every child," declared Dr. Sherbon, "has the right to have a pair of reasonably competent parents, one of whom shall be on the job, handicapped by neither bridge nor poverty.

"He has a right to a mother who should be neither a drudge nor indolent. She should have time to read the new literature on child care, should have a little time to woo her own soul, and she must have time to sleep. The person carrying a load of fatigue cannot react normally to any of the situations of life.

"He has the right to a father who can 'bring home the bacon'. It is the father who creates atmosphere. He provides the base in the domestic symphony. A father must not be too tired to play, he also should read the new literature, and he must not be a tyrant or 'know-it-all', nor a disciplinary bogey-man. He should be playmate and pal and—if he likes it and can do it well—a supplementary caretaker."

What The Child Should Have.

What these exemplary parents should do for a child was set forth by Dr. Brown as follows:

1. Give him some place to call his own. A child who is shoved around to suit adult convenience will always be disgrundled peevish and discontented.
2. See that he has a pure outdoor life.
3. See that he has a regular program of sleep, and elimination of food. He should be given growth producing food.
4. Provide him with employment in reason.
5. Provide that when he wants to associate with other children, he shall do so safely.
6. His unfolding interests should be turned to educational advantage.
7. He should be protected against contagions.
8. He should not be permitted to acquire defects.
9. He should be taught to take care of himself and to share responsibility.

"The first quarter of this present century," said Dr. Sherbon, "discovered the pre-school child, stripped, weighed, measured and Binet'ed him, and started him on his habit training.

Attention to Parent Now.

"The second quarter has started out by discovering the parent and has already invited him to come along with the baby and get what is coming to him. If the third quarter should be able to successfully piece the family together again, there would seem to be little left for the fourth quarter of this dynamic century to do but to usher in the millenium and begin to educate the Martians."

Dr. Sherbon traced the development of child research, child health and child nutrition. The latest phase, she said, had been the growth of mental hygiene, behavior and habit clinics and psychiatric clinics and parent-study groups.

"For the first time," she pointed out, "we begin to send the whole child to school, instead of, as formerly, a precious, detached little 'mind', borne thither by a body about which 'the system' was not at all concerned. If the child thinks with his body, or at least expresses himself through his body, it is only logical that he should be taught to operate his productive machine and keep it in order, just as a typist must learn the character and care of the machine he operates."

Some of the more paternalistic features of the school-health program, such as baths and lunches and health practices, Dr. Sherbon predicted, will eventually be decentralized and checked up to the parents which the schools will have trained.

Need Trained Generation.

"But the schools will have first to produce one generation of trained parents before this becomes possible," she asserted.

As far as the science of personal and public health is concerned, it will "ever be the function of the school to teach this and teach it vitally," she said.

The tendency of the school to take the child off the hands of the mother at a "young and ever younger age" was pointed out.

"Indeed," she said, "it even shows signs of annexing the nursery school and preparing to take the child off her hands as soon as he can fairly walk alone."

"The time has gone by," she elaborated, "when the pre-school child was regarded as an adorable nuisance to be cajoled and punished and spoiled and loved and gotten along with on any terms possible until he should be old enough 'to go to school and learn something.' As a matter of fact, it now takes about the whole world to bring a child to school age. The modern mother reaches out to the pre-natal clinic, to the well-baby clinic, to the children's health conference, to the behavior clinic and, later, to the school health service. She reads literature provided by the state child hygiene department, by the federal children's bureau, by life insurance companies and by private agencies."

The Children's Charter.

Dr. Sherbon quoted from the International Children's Charter, endorsed by the fifth assembly of the League of Nations in 1924:

"I. The child must be given the means requisite for its normal development, both materially and spiritually.

"II. The child that is hungry must be fed; the child that is sick must be helped; the child that is backward must be helped; the delinquent child must be reclaimed; and the orphans and the waifs must be sheltered and succored.

"III. The child must be the first to receive relief in times of distress.

"IV. The child must be put in a position to earn a livelihood and must be protected against every form of exploitation.

"V. The child must be brought up in the consciousness that its talents must be devoted to the service of its fellow men."

"To me," Dr. Sherbon said, "this standardization of thought and agreement in attitude of the whole world toward the young child is our strongest guarantee of ultimate world peace and holds limitless hope for human progress."

Proposes Community Program.

She cited also the work done and being done by various foundations and municipalities and their research centers. Proposing a community program for child health, she urged that existing agencies be coordinated, rather than new ones created; that child health is a broad term and a child health program must include the social, physical and emotional aspects of the child's life; that the program should concentrate first on the very young child; and that there should be no break in continuity of health protection when the child starts to school.

Several Dogs Are Dead From Poison

During the past week some one or something has succeeded in poisoning several dogs about town. Among those that have died are dogs of M. Ellis, Mrs. Mary Masters, Gene Brittain, Jas. Cole, Orville Swan, C. D. Skidmore, John Warren and others. Some of these dogs were family pets, good harmless dogs that would never bother anybody or anything. Rewards are offered for information as to where or how these dogs were poisoned. Some of these dogs perhaps had more sense than the one who poisoned them. — Guilford Times.

DAUGHTERS of MIDAS

THIS HAS HAPPENED

CLAY CURTIS voluntarily disinherits himself and gives up a life of ease and luxury to follow the example of his father, T. Q. CURTIS, a self-made man whom he admires tremendously. Clay has been an ardent student of music all his life and his ambition is to become a great composer. When he leaves home, he takes with him only hand luggage and music.

Clay finds a room in the poorer section of town, in the home of a MRS. WELLS. She has a daughter, BILLY, who is head of the glove department in the mammoth department store owned by Clay's father. Billy is also a violinist of unusual ability. Clay is instantaneously attracted to her, though Billy's first reaction to his presence in her home is one of amazement that the son of her employer should wish to live in such humble surroundings.

Before Clay leaves his room the next morning, Billy hears a shattering of glass. When he departs, she hurries to see what has been broken. There she finds a splintered frame and a picture torn in three parts. Fitting the parts together, she beholds a lovely woman—the actress who has thrown Clay over. Billy, in a rush of anger she does not understand, casts the fragments on the fire.

When Old T. Q., as Mr. Curtis is known in the store, learns that his son is in the home of one of his employes, he sends for Billy and quizzes her. Billy resents in spirited language Old T. Q.'s insinuation that there is an affair between her and his son. She believes the scene will culminate in her dismissal from the store, but the old man kindly assures her that it has no bearing on her position.

She later learns that a meeting has been called for all the women of the store. Billy is sorely disappointed at this announcement. She is aquiver with eagerness to get home to her violin, for she has promised Clay she would play one of his songs with him that night.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER 6

The great room, occupying a quarter of the space on the seventh floor and dedicated to amateur theatricals and balls, was rapidly filing with girls and women when Billy Wells entered, her arm around the shoulders of her chum, Leila Sampson, a stout, plain, honest-eyed girl who worked in the children's shoe department.

Nyda Lomax preened her superb, voluptuous body in a new Chanel red panne velvet dress, as she explained, in the languid voice which she had adopted as best suited to her vamp role:

"Eighteen ninety-five, and 20 per cent still to come off. Like it? Susie told me they were going to make it one of tomorrow's specials, and I slipped up to third on my noon hour and grabbed it. It's an import—honest! Susie says it was marked sixty-five when it first came in, but a fat dame tore it under the arm trying to get into it, and they were going to put it on the damaged rack. Like it?" she repeated, revolving slowly like a mannequin.

"It's the cat's, Nyda," Winnie Shelton, fragile, demure, with silver-blond hair and wide, baby-stare blue eyes, told her friend graciously. "But why are you wearing it? To make us green with envy?"

"I've got a heavy date with Eddie Banning tonight." Nyda dropped into a chair and crossed her long, beautifully shaped legs as she began to touch her lips with a new tube of color. "Dinner at The Swan—Russion orchestra—and can they play? Oh, boy! Say, I wonder when old T. Q.'s going to make the grand entry? Some nerve, believe me, making us stay after hours—"

"Oh, don't crab, Nyda," Billy told her with a vicious little click of her teeth. "He doesn't do it often, and I've noticed it's usually something for our good—"

"My Lord, when did you sprout wings?" Winnie Shelton snapped. "Feel sorta like one of the family now, I suppose. Better make hay while the sun shines, dearie. Papa may forgive his baby boy any minute—"

"Oh, shut up!" Billy sprang forward as if she intended to slap the delicate pink and white face.

"Sh-h! Here comes T. Q." Leila Sampson seized Billy's arm and drew her down into a chair. "Don't let that little Dumb Dora get your goat, Billy. Don't you know that's just what she's aching for?" Leila whispered under cover of the perfunctory applause that greeted T. Q. Curtis' appearance on the platform.

"All right! That's enough, more than enough!" Old T. Q. raised his hand peremptorily, but that wry smile twitching at the corners of his lips told the more than a hundred and fifty women present that he was pleased. "I reckon you all feel more like hissing than clapping, being kept after store hours like this. But what I've got to say won't take long. I suppose you all know that the Curtis Store celebrates its thirtieth anniversary on February first, with a big party in this room for the Curtis family.

"Now, I've been cudgeling my two ounces of brains—" polite laughter interrupted him—"for a new stunt to make this anniversary mean more to you folks. I'm planning something else for the men; this is strictly a ladies' affair. As you pass out, you'll find a table at the door, with a pile of printed questionnaires. Going to give you a little home work to do," he grinned at the disappointment in the faces upturned to his. "I might as well tell you right now that not a mother's daughter of you is obliged to answer that questionnaire. I pay you for your time in the store, but I haven't got the right to make you do home work for me."

"But, just as one friend speaking to another, I hope all of you will answer every question carefully. The questionnaire is headed, 'Why I Work in the Curtis Store,' and a lot of you may get your back up at some of the questions and feel like telling me it's none of my durn business, but I hope you'll answer them just the same."

He paused and smiled quizzically as a slight rustle of impatience began among the flappers and spread gradually to the older women.

"I'm not asking you to do this gigantic piece of work for nothing. There's going to be a pretty big list of prizes—cash prizes," he underlined, frowning prodigiously, "for the twenty-five best papers turned in. You'll find plenty of blank space under the few questions for you to write me a letter, telling just why you work her. The prizes will be awarded for the best letters and sets of answers, and the judges will be Miss Simmons, head of the personnel department, Mr. Hoskins, the general manager, and myself. First prize will be twenty-five dollars, second twenty-four, and so on down till the last prize will be one dollar. That's all—hustle along to your suppers now, and don't forget to take a questionnaire. Oh, yes, papers have to be in by January 20. Good night!"

T. Q. left the room abruptly by the door at the right of the stage, and bedlam broke lose.

Billy elbowed her way through the crush of girls, her ears bombarded by such disgusted comments as: "Well, can you feature that?" "What does he think this is—the army?"

A number walked past the table without glancing at the neat stack of questionnaires. And since there was no important store executives to report them, fully a score of the girls who had taken up the printed folders scanned them hurriedly, and dropped them to the floor of the hall before they took the waiting elevators.

"We've got a teacher boarding at our house." Winne Shelton squeezed into the elevator with Billy and Nyda and Leila Sampson. "I'm going to get her to help me dope out a good one—string him along. That's what he wants. You going to answer yours, Nyda?"

"I could use twenty-five dollars. I guess you've got the right dope on it, Winsome Winnie," Nyda agreed. "Me and Eddie'll give it the onecover at dinner tonight. He'll get a big laugh anyway. Ain't this a scream, Billy — 'What is the big ambition of your life?'" she read from the questionnaire.

"Funny as a funeral," Billy retorted, but her eyes were serious as they scanned the list of questions. "What you going to say, Nyda? Tell him the truth—that your big ambition is to show Hollywood what a real vamp looks like?"

"And lose my chance to be head of my department?" Nyda's crimson lips curled in derision. "Not on your life! Winnie's right—string him along! Tell him my highest ambition is to be head of the cosmetics department, and maybe I'll get the job."

"Use your brains, Nyda," Billy advised scornfully. "Every bootlicker in the whole store will pull that gag on him, and he's smart enough to know it. I'd be willing to bet you'd stand a better chance with old T. Q. if you said honestly that you wanted to be a movie actress. He wasn't born yesterday."

"Maybe you're right," Nyda agreed. "I'll get Eddie to help me think up a swell ambish. Good night! I bet the boy friend's chewing his nails."

"Tell me a good ambition to have, Billy," said Leila Sampson. "What I honestly want to do is to stay right where I am until I fall in love with a nice boy and get married—"

"Then say so, you idiot!" Billy chuckled as she hugged her chum good night. "Don't you think old T. Q. knows that any normal girl would rather get married than work in his store, no matter how pleasant he makes it for us?"

"But you don't want to get married." Leila held on to her hand with the dog-like devotion that sometimes got on Billy's nerves. "You want to be a concert violinist."

"That shows what a fool I am!" Billy retorted bitterly. "Fat chance I've got to be a violinist that people would pay to hear, when I can't even afford a decent fiddle, or a teacher that knows any more than I do. I've got to run, Leila. Mother'll be calling out the police department."

When the jolting street car had deposited Billy at the corner nearest her home, it was half past six—a very dark, bitterly cold night, tortured with an angry wind that tried to snatch her short coat from her body.

As she stepped upon the porch, a muted ripple of piano notes greeted her—a gay cascade of sound that lifted her, as if by magic, out of the sordid work-aday world into realms of pure delight. How he could play! And what was that thing he was pouring out as a welcome to her, though he had not idea that it was a welcome? She had never heard it before—

She tried to make her entrance noiselessly, so that divine flood of music would not be broken into, but the wind seized the door from her hand and banged it viciously.

The music stopped, breaking a phrase ruthlessly, and a moment later the door into the living room was thrown open. "Hello! You're late! You promised to be here by six, to try my song with me—"

"What do you mean by breaking off a phrase like that?" she scolded him, as he had scolded her that memorable night when her violin had drawn him into her home from the unfriendly street he had been walking aimlessly.

He grinned. "Your mother's weeping over something that she swears is spoiling in the oven. We'd better eat, and then we can play all evening, can't we?"

"Can't!" Billy shrugged out of her coat. "Got heavy literary work ahead of me this evening. Clay, your honorable pa is slipping into his second childhood, or he's up to something. Here—took a look at this!" She shoved the questionnaire into his hands as they entered the living room.

Clay Curtis started to laugh as he handed the printed list of questions back to Billy, but that pleasant sound broke off abruptly. His eyes narrowed as he heard, in memory, words he had not taken the trouble to recall since he had spoken them so lightly—"You ought to have a daughter, Dad—"

Eastertide

By Harlowe R. Hoyt

Hosanna!
Christ is risen today!
The tomb wherein He lay is bare.
The blocking stone is rolled away.
A song of gladness fills the air.
There is no death to hold in thrall,
For Christ triumphant conquers all!
Hosanna!

The cross that cast its fearful blight
O'er Calvary, no more lowers grim,
But rises now, a power of might,
In sign of promise made by Him.
Lift up your voices once again,
He triumphs over sin and pain.
Once more, the Easter lilies bloom;
Once more, the land is soft with spring,
And timid winds, with sweet perfume,
Bespeak it in their whispering.
Beneath the spell, the very earth
Wakes, at His waking, to new birth.
Hosanna!
Christ is risen today!
He triumphs over sin and pain!
And Death is fled beneath His sway—
Lift up your voices once again!
Spread the glad tidings far and wide!
Christ lives again! 'tis Eastertide!
Hosanna!

Burlington Junction

By J. Howard Thompson.

Sherman Taylor, of Boynton, Okla., who has been here for the past two weeks on account of the serious illness and death of his mother, Mrs. Emma Taylor, left for his home Friday. He had not been in Nodaway County for a period of ten years, prior to this visit.

After an absence of several days on account of rain, the painters are at work again, painting the Methodist Church. They soon will have the first coat on.

Miss Mary Barber, who for many years was connected with the Junction Mercantile Company of Burlington Junction, sold her interests in that business a few weeks ago, and after a few weeks vacation, secured a position with the Penney Store in Maryville, and began her work there last Monday.

It just seems as if R. N. Good could not stay away from Burlington Junction. Ten days ago he moved to Clarinda, Ia., but in a few days came back for a visit.

The Rev. and Mrs. D. B. Warren have recently reached the distinction of being grandparents, their daughter, Mrs. Ray Carlson, having become a mother on Sunday, April 10. The child is a son, and he has been christened Jack Warren. The mother was Miss Harriett Warren prior to her marriage a year ago.

The mother of Roy Byers who died in Wichita Falls, Tex., a few days ago was sent to Maryville, her former home for burial. Those attending the funeral on Wednesday of this week from here were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Byers, with their son Jack, and daughter Bettie Lou, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Buckridge, and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Walker and daughter, Pauline.

Glad news have been received from the hospital, in Kansas City, where Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan Graves, went a few weeks ago for operations, to the effect that both Mr. and Mrs. Graves are getting along in splendid shape, and will be able to return home next week. Mr. Graves is one of the rural carriers from here. His work is being taken care of by his son Earl, who is a substitute, during his absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Evans, of St. Joseph were in town a few days this week, having been called here by the death of Mrs. Sara Evans, the grandmother of Mr. Evans. They returned to their home Thursday morning. They were guests at the George Yates home while here.

Mrs. Hindman was called to Cameron Thursday of this week, by the death of her grandmother, Mrs. Holtzapple.

Miss Maggie Morgan, after an absence of two weeks visiting in Pickering and community, is at home again. She makes her home while here with Dr. and Mrs. Hindman. She is a nurse.

Mrs. Jesse Robertson and Mrs. Charles Corwin of Maryville, were both in town on Wednesday of this week, attending the funeral services of Mrs. Sara Evans. The three families have been intimate friends for many years. They returned home on the evening train.

Members of the Service Battery have recently been matching their ability to shoot, with the Battery of Maryville. Captain Lee Yaple, Lieut. Severs, and Sargeant Thompson and Sargeant Barber, and Corporals Kelley and Lamar, have all made good records, going 80 or above. Captain Yaple and Sargeant Thompson, reaching the highest mark, that of above 90.

Mr. and Mrs. Ramey Hann were host and hostess, to the Young Married People's Club, last Wednesday night. It is needless to say that all had a very enjoyable time. At the close of the program refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, olives, salad, peanut rolls, and coffee, were served by the hostess. Those present were, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Berry Hann, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Fordyce, Mr. and Mrs. John Houston, and Mr. and Mrs. Miles Graves.

Word comes on Thursday of this week from Emmett, Idaho, of the death of William Lemon, a former resident of Clearmont, of this county. There were no details of the cause of his death, and so far as is known, there are no arrangements made for the funeral services. He was a resident of Nodaway County for a good many years prior to his going West.

Because of the excessive rains and deep mud, the rural mail carriers have had to abandon their automobiles of late and resort to the horse and buggy again, in order to get the mail over their routes. They say the roads are now in as bad condition as they have been for some time. They frequently have to detour on account of open bridges or swollen creeks. Most of them, however, have made their full route each day, despite of rain and mud.

Mr. and Mrs. John Boyer received a letter from Mrs. Boyer's brother, Mr. A. E. Miller this week, living in Oklahoma, telling of his loss by storm there last week. His house was unroofed and his porch torn away, and a fine barn demolished. Mr. Miller was a former resident of this community and has many friends here.

The Rev. J. Howard Thompson was in Skidmore Monday and Tuesday nights of this week, the guest of the Rev. and Mrs. John V. Hawk. While there he preached both nights, in the pre-Easter services being held in the church there. The meetings will close Sunday night.

Mrs. Henry Staples and Mrs. Edward Hackett mourn the sudden death of their brother, Blaine Rhoades, who died of heart failure at his home ten miles southwest of Maryville. At this writing, no funeral arrangements have been completed. Mr. Rhoades was a former citizen of this community and has many friends who will deeply mourn his sudden death. His mother lives in Maryville.

Hints and Helps for Farmers

by Ross J. Fleetwood County Extension Agent

The recent rains have prevented many from getting their oats and clovers sown and I am receiving many inquiries as to how late it will pay to seed oats and clover. It is very difficult to answer this question because the weather conditions from now on will determine whether late seeded oats matuer into a good crop. There is no single factor which affects oats yields like time of planting. However, the early varieties such as Kherson Swedish select, Sixty Day and Texas Red are least affected by late seedings. Early oats such as the above seeded as late as April 26 have given fair yields. Oats is a cold weather crop and when the weather gets about so warm oats will mature whether they are advanced enough or not. Therefore if we have a rather cool season with plenty of moisture until oats harvest, oats seeded within the next 10 days should make a fair yield. If the season is favorable for the oats crop it will also be favorable for clover. It is doubtful if anything but the scarified sweet clover seed should be sown this late in the season.

The dormant or delayed dormant spray may be applied to apples until the buds begin to open. This spray is 1 gallon of lime sulfer solution to 7 gallons of water.

The agricultural extension service in cooperation with the Portland Cement Association will hold two demonstrations on building septic tanks in Nodaway County sometime in June. The demonstration will consist in the actual construction of the tank, together with talks and discussions on water supply and sewage disposal. It will be necessary for me to secure two cooperators who are wanting septic tanks, where we can hold these demonstrations. If anyone is interested in having one of the demonstrations held on your farm or in your community I would be glad to hear from you at your earliest convenience so that I can complete the arrangements and secure dates for the demonstrations.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, April 16.—Heavy liquidation was on in wheat early today, but the market showed rather good rallying power and prices closed unchanged to ⅛ cent higher. The cash market was ½ cent lower.

Corn was heavy right from the start and all deliveries were forced to new lows on the crop. However, an oversold condition developed, closing quotations being ⅛ cent off to ⅛ cent higher than the previous close. The cash market was ½ cent to 1½ cents lower and the spring demand was slow.

Oats were steadier than other grains and closed ⅛ to ⅜ cent higher than Thursday's close. The cash demand was indifferent and the market unchanged.

Provisions were easier.

INSPIRATION

Backed by Ideals!

A Bank or an institution is in its character and methods only a reflection of the character of those who guide it through the years.

Behind every institution, formulating the ideals of its business and shaping its policies, is some personality or group to whose inspiration the structure owes its existence.

The founders of this Bank, when they laid down the fundamentals of this House, had their inspiration—the ideals of PERSONAL SERVICE. How well they carried out this spirit through the years of service is attested by the steady business growth.
